Aged Saddles

Brooks England Saddles are world renowned for comfort, styling and longevity. But did you know that up until the late 1960's they were also the first choice of the Cycling Greats, winning the Tours? Legends such as Girardengo, Bottecchia, Bartali, Coppi and Anquetil all rode Brooks Saddles to victory, and the coveted yellow jersey.

These riders would each have technicians, responsible for their machines, ensuring that they were maintained to the highest standard. They were also charged with responsibility of the saddle, and trusted no other but Brooks England to deliver.

However, in order to ensure that the saddle became 'as one' with its rider, the technicians would disassemble it and massage the hide so that their oils, wines and other closely guarded potions penetrated the leather. These solutions conditioned its structure and meant a softer, more comfortable ride could be enjoyed, from day one.

Advertising of 1914

The new range of Brooks Aged Saddles are again manufactured using only the finest natural products. Specially formulated waxes and balms are skillfully worked into the hide, resulting in a more comfortable riding experience, requiring less break-in time.

Brooks England have chosen 3 designs as homage to this practice. They are:
-the B17 - the ever popular unisex sports model
-the Flyer – ideal for ATB and Trekking use and
-the B67 - our current best seller
The last 2 models are available also in ladies' version.

Brooks Aged saddles are "Soft from Day 1" and are available in all good bike shops since 2005, retailing at 69 €.
